

New Mexico Marriage Officiant Guide

Marriage Officiants: Any person credentialed by a religious society can perform a marriage ceremony anywhere in the State of New Mexico. A Justice of the Peace (normally a Magistrate Judge, Municipal Judge or Probate Judge) may also perform a ceremony, including District Judges upon request.

Non-resident Officiants may serve in New Mexico without restriction. Officiants are not required to register with any agency in the state, but must submit their credentials to any legal authority, as well as the parties to the marriage, upon their request.

The marriage license must be recorded with the County Clerk's Office by the person solemnizing the marriage within 90 days from the date of marriage.

MARRIAGE LICENSE INFORMATION

Much of the information below is state law in New Mexico; however, this information can vary from county to county, and is subject to change. We recommend contacting your county clerk's office before applying for your marriage license.

By law in New Mexico, the County Clerk's office is the only agency permitted to issue marriage licenses. All marriage license applications are permanently filed, as are marriage records. The marriage license hotline is 505-768-4314.

Fee: The cost of a marriage license is $25, which must be paid in cash, although some counties charge up to $40.

Applicants: Both applicants need to be present for the license to be issued.

Proxy Marriage: Not permitted.

Age: Both applicants need to be at least 18 years of age.

Identification: Both applicants must have current legal picture ID, or birth certificate, and must show proof of Social Security number. Applicants from foreign countries must show a passport.

Parental Consent: Required if applicant is 16 or 17 years of age. A court order must be obtained if an applicant is 15 years of age.

Previous Marriage: If previously married, the date of divorce or date of spouse's death must be supplied.

Witnesses: The marriage license must be brought to the ceremony, where it must be signed by two witnesses (who are of legal age) and the minister.

Common Law Marriage: Not permitted.

Cousin Marriage: Permitted in New Mexico.

Same-Gender Marriage: Permitted.

Miscellaneous: A New Mexico marriage license is valid for one year, and is issued and valid immediately. A marriage license purchased in any New Mexico county can be used (solemnized) anywhere within the state. No medical exam or waiting period is required.
